Interesting facts: Legend has it that Radler (German for 'cyclist') was invented by Franz Xaver Kugler, who created the drink in September 1922 when 13,000 cyclists arrived at his inn in Munich. As he realized that he was running out of beer, he decided to mix it with lemon soda and came up with an ingenious idea to justify such 'alteration': this light, more refreshing drink with a lower alcohol content will help cyclists not to have accidents on their way back home.
